

Center on Education and Lifelong Learning

Our Guiding Principles

Transformational: CELL encourages an inquiry-based process for people to listen, reflect, create and practice. We are committed to personal and professional growth that fosters a deep respect for the learner. We view our role as a designer of learning experiences.

Knowledge-driven: CELL is committed to promoting and facilitating a culture that generates, uses and shares knowledge.

Community-minded: CELL fosters the idea of community: a culture of caring and inclusion focused on a collective sense of purpose.

Sustainable: CELL seeks to build the leadership and system capacities so that the work is sustainable over time.

Participatory: CELL is committed to building systems for all people to be active participants in shaping their future.

Mission-driven: CELL acts intentionally to work with schools and communities to welcome, include, educate and support all learners. It is through the lens of this mission that all that we do and create is assessed.

Join us for a summer adventure!

Who should participate: Teachers, administrators, and school teams at all grade levels benefit from camp.

What you learn: We focus on the skills necessary to teach ALL kids. Camp strands include:

Classroom Climate and Discipline

This camp strand focuses on the elements of effective classroom management—rules and procedures, the teacher-student relations, disciplinary interventions, “withitness” and mental attitude.

Differentiated Instruction

This camp strand challenges and supports educators as they create standard’s based instructional experiences in response to the rich diversity of learners in every classroom.

Collaboration and Co-Teaching

This camp strand emphasizes the skills we all need to work and teach effectively with professional colleagues, administrators, families, and students.

What is the cost: $225.

Where is it located: Bloomington High School North, Bloomington, Indiana

What are the hours: 8:30 AM-4:30 PM

Who is your contact: For questions about content or IU credit, call Carrie Chapman at 812-855-6508. For questions about registration; call Kay Moore at 812-855-6508.
